GAINSBOROUGH LODGE
IN HISTORY

Here, nature will connect everyday life, with lush landscaping cresting the rise to the East, meeting new regional parklands and the edge of town. Just 10km from the centre of Toowoomba and a short drive to Wellcamp Business Park and Airport, Gainsborough Lodge is connected to our burgeoning future as well as our proud past.

WELCOME TO THE
NEIGHBOURHOOD

GAINSBOROUGH LODGE

Regenerative land management is second nature at Gainsborough Lodge, so it's no surprise that every tree, shrub and garden bed is being planted to preserve its ecosystem, while enriching everyday connections.

Our roads are more than A-to-B links: they're grand triple-width promenades that change colour with the season – broad, safe parkways, dotted with places to relax among the trees.

HOMEGROWN HISTORY

Gainsborough Lodge has been part of the Toowoomba landscape for over 50 years. Originally a dairy farm, Gainsborough Lodge was established in the 1970s by Alfred Grant. The Lodge fast became one of the Southern Hemisphere's premier horse studs as Grant imported an array of impeccable thoroughbred stock, including Charlton, a winning stallion raced by Queen Elizabeth II.

In its '70s heyday the Lodge had its own horse hospital, all-weather training track, and architect-designed stables and breeding barns — at one point, it even boasted its own airstrip.

The Stables

"Crewman" Bay 1965 Todman-Royal Lark

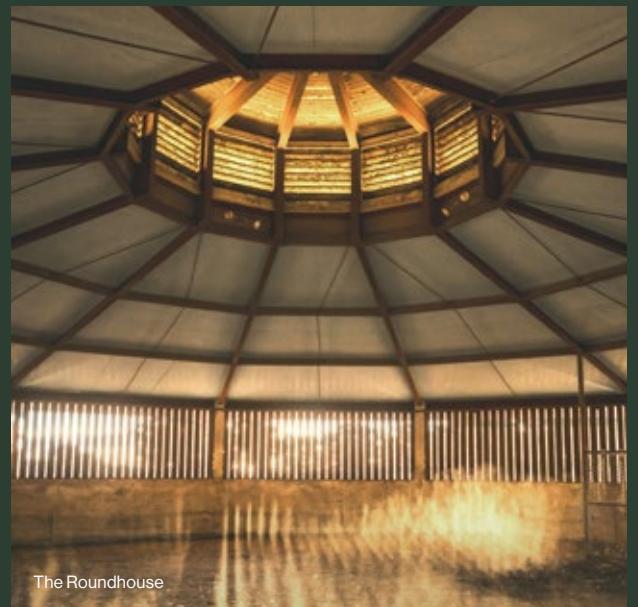

The Richards family have owned Gainsborough Lodge since 1991, when it was purchased by Col Richards to expand his thoroughbred breeding and racing program. Delivering many well-known ribands, including the Swiss Ace and the famed Oliver Twist, Richards' name grew into a byword for fine Australian bloodstock and Gainsborough Lodge became a local landmark, where healthy mares and foals grazed peacefully in rolling paddocks.

While the stables now stand quiet, its legacy will continue on. New stories of Gainsborough Lodge will unfold as it evolves into one of Toowoomba's finest masterplanned communities.
